

Prayer around the Font (Monday) † Loehle Chapel

A service of morning prayer based upon the pattern for worship in Evangelical Lutheran Worship. The service includes preaching as the regular form of reflection on the reading from scripture. It concludes with thanksgiving for baptism as we begin this week in the gift and promise of our life together in Jesus Christ.

READING: [REDACTED]

SERMON

If there is not a final-year preacher scheduled for this week, the planning group is encouraged to think creatively about how to respond and reflect upon the lectionary reading for the day. This could also be a time to focus on any commemorations, lesser festivals, or liturgical events that might be taking place this week – but it does not need to be. This could be done through poetry, visual arts, dance, a musical offering, or any other form of reflection upon the text for the day.

HYMN or CANTICLE: [REDACTED]

This hymn may be another morning hymn, or may reflect the scripture reading for the day and continue the proclamation of God's word in song. The canticles associated with morning prayer—the Benedictus (Song of Zechariah) and the Te Deum (We Praise you, O God) on festival days or in festival seasons—may also be used. See ELW p. 303 for several examples of these canticles.

PRAYERS:

The prayer may take a variety of forms, including prayers of thanksgiving and intercession.
